

Newsletter – 12.05.23

Despite this week in school being shorter than normal, the children have worked really hard. I have heard lots of stories about Coronation celebrations and Liberation Day activities. These are experiences that children will always remember and provide great learning opportunities for all. I hope you managed to enjoy the celebrations with your children.

School Council

This week, some of our school councillors visited Highlands College for a network meeting with other schools. They discussed how to be included in decision making and what they would like to help make decisions about. Miss Le Maistre reported back to me that they were brilliant and really engaged in the conversations. Well done children.

Rights Respecting School

This week, our class representatives met with Miss Carroll to make further progress on our journey to the silver award. You will notice that on some newsletters I have started to include the article of the month. This is something that the children have asked me to do to make sure we are sharing the message about our focus in school. The article of the month changes regularly and is also shared and discussed in assemblies when it changes every month.

Have a lovely weekend.

Headteacher

Rights Respecting School Article of the month - I have a right to relax and play. Children and young people have the right to rest and leisure, to engage in play and recreational activities and to participate in cultural life and the arts.
